Poetry.

In the Twilight.

No word, no sound! O, could I reach.
The rapture that the silence keeps
In her enchanted silver deeps—
Deeper than clearest thought or speech;

Or could I touch the tiny thrills
That stir the heart of one sweet song,
The ecstacy that lingers long
Beyond the mildest, madest trills;

Or catch the beauty of one beam
That glorifies the day and night,
Ethereal spirit of the light,
Imprisonen in each golden gleam

A flash, a thrill, and it is flown!
O, could I grasp and hold awhile,
The tender glory of a smile,
The music of a loving tone;

And something dearer that I found,
And sweeter than the sweetest word,
The music that was never heard
Or syllabeled by song or sound;

A joy beyond our touch or sight,
A something tenderer than the tone,
And finer than has flashed or flown,
The silent soul of a delight.

Then might I one sweet secret say,
Then mortal eyes might watching see
The glory that passed by with thee,
And vanished with a summer day.

JULIA M. HOLMES.

Selected Story.

Is it Worth While?

"I wonder if it's worth while?"

So queried a young man, as he sat absorbed in deep thought. He was trying to decide whether, in view of his being a farmer, it would be profitable for him to obtain a through education. He knew of farmers who could scarcely read or write; none who professed more than a common education, yet many were good farmers, in prosperous circumstances, and apparently conteted and happy; and he had so often heard the idea of a farmer having knowledge scoffed at as a thing incompatible with his vocation. Thus he reasoned with himself. He loved the life of a farmer; to him it did not seem drudgery to till the rich fields, and he was impatient to enter upon the work. Yet he was ambitious, and wished to honor his profession, and if this was to be done better by an education than otherwise, why he had both the means and inclination to procure it. Long he pondered, but his mind had acquired a thirst for knowledge, and knowing that no calling can be too well understood, he decided that in the end it would not be time lost nor money wasted, and he entered college. While there he did not forget the object of his studies, and although the classics were not neglected, the sciences were carefully regarded.

Steadily he pursued his course until the closing days of college life drew near. His friends the meanwhile looked on, proud of his ability, and pictured to themselves the glories he would win, and in anticipation, no doubt, of reflecting some was looked upon as the model of the class. Imagine their astonishment, as they were gathered together laying plans for the future, to hear him say, "I mean to be a farmer."

"Why, Fred Miller, are you crazy?" exclaimed one; "you a farmer! To think of hiding yourself in the obscurity of that hum drum existence; you might as well commit suicide at once."

"I do not think there is anything desperate in it, Granger; there is certainly need of good farmers."

"But what can there be in hoeing and digging, from sunrise to sunset, that can possibly be attractive to a person of your culture? I would not degrade myself so," spoke up another.

"Degrade! How can any honest employment degrade? Are not farmers, as a class, men of acknowledged integrity; and have not some that the world has been proud to honor been farmers? No; I will not degrade myself by being one."

"Well, you will at least admit that you will lose the privileges of society. What will you do with Greek and Latin? Teach it to your cattle, perhaps, and waste your fine abilities in lecturing the stars!"

"No; you do me injustice. I have thought well upon the subject, and trust that I shall not allow my mental powers to become inactive. As for Greek and Latin, you will agree that I shall have as much need of them as a merchant has. They will help me to improve and enjoy my leisure moments. There certainly will be use for the Natural Sciences. For the rest, do not imagine that I shall disregard the benefits of society."

"Well, Miller, I hope you will succeed in your expectations. But tell me, do you think it necessary for farmers to be educated?"

"Most certainly I do. I think education as necessary to a farmer as to a man of any other vocation."

Although silenced, they were not convinced.

"I think it is a shame!" exclaimed Henry Granger that evening, after full five minutes of silence and deep thought—a silence by the way, very long for him.

"What is so very disgracefull Henry?" and his sister looked up inquiringly.

"Why, there's Fred Miller, the best scholar in our class, has splendid talents and well fitted to make his mark in the world, you would not think but that he would be eager to secure some honorable position, which he is so well fitted to fill, (she did, though,) well, what is he going to do but bury himself in some wilderness and actually become a farmer. I do believe the fellow has not a particle of ambition."

"Perhaps he has much; not, however, for the fickle applause of men, but to raise that noble employment from the low estimation in which it is now held, and cause it to be regarded, as in truth it is an honorable profession."

"Honorable profession! Amy, I believe he has been instilling some of his absurd fancies into your little brain, but we shall never consent to your being carried off to die and work intolerable ennui on a farm. Remember that!"

"I do not see why one need to fall a victim to either of those things because one lives on a farm. Work may be a little harder and visitors a little fewer, but they may both prove but blessings in disguise."

"You would soon find they are not, and we will take good care not to give you a trial."

But whether in view of Fred Miller's splendid talents," or whether Miss Amy possessed a share of self-will, I know not, but it is certain Amy Granger did become Mrs. Fredric Miller, and that soon after the happy event she did accompany her husband to the veritable farm.

It was not a place that looked inviting to the romantic views of a city lady yet she knew the mind and heart of him to whom she had entrusted her young life, and held the meaningless form and glitter of society of little value in comparison. And it is my opinion that Mr Miller considered this lady with a cultivated mind, and a refined loving heart, worth a dozen years of study. If he did not, he should.

Mr. Miller's farm was as I have said, by no means the most promising. It had been under the care of tenants for several years, and fences, fields, buildings, all bore visible evidences of neglect. but he went to work, determined that a few years should make a great difference in its appearance. He did not follow in the time worn channels of his predecessors, along which most of his neighbors were still plodding, but took advantage of all the facts which investigation and spirit had laid before him, and his own knowledge acquainted him with the soil of his fields and its adaption to the different products.

The neighbors ridiculeed his "new fangled" notions, but in vain. Knowledge is power, and he felt it, his fields proved it. As time passed those who had at first ridiculed began to open their eyes to the fact also, and queried among themselves by what means that old farm had been transformed into such a beautiful place.

"How is it," one asked, "that you have now a better farm than any of us; you don't work as hard, and yet your crops are always better?"

"I know not unless it is that I have learned the science of farming, for my pecuniary means were small."

"I did not know there was a science about farming. But if a little study can make my boys better farmers they shall have it. There's Jim been asking me to go to college, and I told him it was of no use to farmers. "But father," says he 'don't you think Mr Miller is a better farmer than the rest around here, and he's been to college.' So I thought I would ask you."

The consequence was, another mind fitted to battle with life.

Was it worth nothing to be able to satisfy the cravings of young minds? He who thinks not has had little experience of the inner world of the mind.

So the years passed by, bringing their joys and sorrows, and he gaining the respect of all, his counsel sought, his opinion bearing the weight the superior knowledge joined to sound judgment and long experience ever will. He fills no public office, may never be known to the world at large, for reader, he is not a politician, but a farmer in that capacity is content.

For the satisfaction of the curious, let me add that Mrs. Miller is still living, and in her cheerful countenance you can see no trace of ennui. Her aristocratic city friends are glad to get an invitation to spend a few days at the farm.

Was it worth while? We simply give Mr. Miller's own opinion, supposing it to be the fact.

"Any [illegible] course of study at it—was worth a mine of gold to me."

"Extravagant." Do you think so? then try it and see if he was far from the truth.

Miscellaneous.

An Opinion in Bankruptcy by Hon. Judge Brooks.

District Court of United States
Eastern District of North Carolina.

In the matter of William Alderman Bankrupt. } At Chambers Elizabeth City, April, 12, 1873.

In the progress of this cause a question arose and was certified by Mr. Guthrie the Register. The facts appear to be as follows: At the meeting to show cause against the bankrupt's discharge the bankrupt was being examined by certain of his creditors, the counsel for the opposing creditors propounded the following question:

"What was the value of the 250 acre tract of land scheduled by you at the time it was so scheduled?"

This question was objected to by the counsel for the bankrupt.

It is admitted that the tract of land referred to had been set apart to the bankrupt as his homestead, and valued at $1,000, and that the petition in this case was filed in August 1872.

The ground upon which the question was objected to is not stated, but I am left to infer that it was for irrelevancy. Nor is any ground stated for insisting upon an answer to the question.

The relevancy of a question generally depends upon the object to be attained, and if the object sought be a proper one in any investigation in a Court of Justice, and the question propounded be pertinent to that object; if the answer when truthfully made, whether negatively or affirmatively would put the court and the parties in the possession of a fact or of an opinion proper to be regarded in determining the issues or any one of the issues pending, then such question should be answered. But if a question have no bearing upon the issues pending; if the answer would not elucidate or tend to elucidate, some question material or pertinent to the controversy, then the answer should not be insisted on for its irrelevancy.

Then what was the counsel for the opposing creditors seeking to establish? Was it to show that the land assigned as the homestead was in fact worth more than $1,000 00, now allowed by force of the amendment made July, 8th, 1872, to the 14th, section of the bankrupt act? If such was his purpose he could have effected nothing at this stage of the proceedings however clearly he might have established that; though he might have shown it to have been worth greatly more than its assessed value, and for the reason that the law provides very clearly the manner and the particular stage of the proceedings at which all exceptions must be made to any valuation made under the provision of the 14th selection of the law we are now considering; and in no other way can objection be successfully made to any valuation or property assigned as property exempted, if the property be of a character or quality proper to be exempted.

Then was it the purpose of counsel to show that the land was worth greatly more than the $1,000, the price at which it was estimated by the bankrupt himself as stated in his schedule filed with his petition, and as tending to show that the bankrupt had committed perjury or a fraud which would deprive him of his right to his discharge?

If such was the purpose of the counsel in propounding the question, it was proper and should have been answered by the Bankrupt.

It will not do to say that the answer to the question propounded might criminate the Bankrupt. In this proceeding his answer whether made in one way or another would not be sufficient to convict him of crime, for which he could be punished in any other way than by denying him a discharge. And surely if that be a punishment from which he has a right to screen himself by refusing to answer questions asked him upon his examination "concerning his property and estate," it seems to me there was little use in the language employed in the fifth paragraph of the 26th, section of the act. His answer made in this examination would not be such a "confession in open court" as the courts would hear if he should be indicted for perjury; so the answer made here on the examination would not even tend to establish a charge of perjury when made by indictment.

Every statement required to be made in a proceeding in bankruptcy, whether it be a statement of a fact, or the expression of an opinion, is required to be truthfully made. I would not be understood as holding that every statement of fact must be true, or statement of opinion must be correct, but that both statements of facts and opinions must be true to the best knowledge information and belief of the deotor.

By the 26th, section of the act of 1867, we find it provided that if the bankrupt has wilfully sworn falsely in his affidavit annexed to his petition, schedule or inventory he shall not be entitled to his discharge.

It may be said that the statement of the value of property scheduled is immaterial; that no one is accountable for a failure to realize the amount so fixed as the value of any property scheduled; that this opinion although expressed under the sanction of the bankrupt's oath, and though it may be true that the bankrupt knew that the land was of much greater value than $1,000, and consequently the statement was knowingly false, yet being immaterial such false oath does not come within the provision of the 26th, section before referred to.

It cannot, I think, be successfully contended that any statement or disclosure required by law to be made, whether it be of a fact or of an opinion, is immaterial especially when such statement is required by the law to be verified by the oath of the party making it.

Again, it is material in as much as the form of the schedule prepared by the Supreme Court of the United States provides for such statement to be made. These forms it should be remembered are of much more force than forms ordinarily used in legal proceedings. These are made so by virtue of a provision of section 10 of the Act and 32nd, rule prescribed by the Justices of the Supreme Court under the provision of the section referred to; so I will not impute to the highest judicial tribunal of our Government the folly of requiring an [illegible] to be [illegible] under oath.

The authors of schedule B knew that it would often be material in aiding the Assignee in the performance of an important duty—a duty which the Assignee in this case, was required to perform, and on account of the manner of its performance injustice may have resulted to creditors.

Suppose the Assignee is in doubt as to the value at which he should assess any article of property to be assigned as exempted, may he not with propriety refer to the value set by the Bankrupt on oath in his schedule? Would there be impropriety in his doing so and be influenced too by such assessment if he has confidence in the integrity of the Bankrupt? And every statement required to be made under oath is intended to convey faith and confidence to all whose action may be influenced by them.

It is to be regretted as one of the evils of this day that some of our Courts are found to verge so nearly towards exercising the power of "judicial legislation," and in the face too of that distinct and fundamental declaration that the Executive, Legislative and Judicial departments of our Government shall be kept seperate. The Courts are only clothed with the power and charged with the duty of declaring what the law is, construing the law, so that in all civil controversies the rights of the parties may be meeted out to them under the law as it is, and as it was made by that department of the Government having the power and charged with the highly important duty of making the law. And the most inexcusable feature in this tendency of some of our Courts is that this "judicial law-making" shows a most scrupulous observance of the rights of the debtor class and a corresponding indifference to the rights of the sometimes more unfortunate creditor.

The very law which this Bankrupt is invoking the benefits of, (and the benefits provided by the law when administered in it's true spirit, are very great to the honest insolvent) provides that a creditor who has proved his debt may examine the Bankrupt on oath "as to all matters concerning his property and estate," to the end that if he has been guilty of perpetrating a fraud upon his creditors in his anxiety to be releived from legal obligations to them by having knowingly and wilfully surrendered less than he should have surrendered for their benefit, that he shall be refused his discharge.

This language is broad. There are no provisions or exceptions stated, and I have not the power or the inclination to make one.

The insatiable railroad companies swallow up something more than a decent lion's share of the price obtained in Eastern markets for the produce of the Northwest. A Springfield man lately bought two car loads of corn in Iowa for ten cents a bushel and sold it in Springfield for seventy cents. That looks like a heavy profit, but 53½ cents per bushel had been paid for freight. This is why corn is cheaper than kindling wood in Iowa.

Workmen near Columbus, Ohio, think they have dug up some remains of an extinct race. They have found human bones, it is said, which must have belonged to an ancient people differing materially in shape and size from the Indians. There is said to be an extensive deposit of these interesting bones, but whether they are to be used by the farmers for fertilizers or by the doctors for teachers in morbid anatomy doth not appear.

Somebody once asked Tom Corwin if he had heard a certain story of Lewis D. Campbell's. "Was it about himself?" inquired Mr. Corwin. "No, I believe not." "Well, then, I never heard it," said Mr. Corwin, gravely.

FURTHER REASONS WHY THE IMMIGRANT SHOULD COME SOUTH INSTEAD OF GOING WEST.

In continuation of this subject—and it is one of interest and importance to the immigrant about to seek a new home—we would observe that with the one exception of raising pork and beef, corn and wheat are the only resources at the West, whilst here at the South not only can the cereals be raised at good paying prices, but nearly every other product that can be profitably cultivated at any other point of the Union. To the old standard crops of cotton and tobacco are now added innumerable other products, either partially developed or only awaiting capital for their greatest extension. The products of the forest also, and of the rivers and creeks and bays which permeate most sections of our State, givingat the same time easy access to the best markets of the world at the smallest cost, all offer to the industrious man of small capital facilities for securing all the comforts of civilization at once, and by the same perseverance that he would have to exercise at the West for the barest existence in almost a semi-barbarous condition, a fortune in less than one-half the time which would be necessary to realize the riches which are anticipated by the advance in the price of their lands.

Fortunes have undoubtedly been made by fortunate investors in land, whose property has been run into by some of the railroads which have been erected, giving to them corner lots, but the same has been the case in and near the old cities of the East, and where one man has reaped success by his investment, twenty have failed to secure a return even of the taxes paid on their property.

But let us see what is the state of the case in regard to the comforts and necessities of life. At the South roads and facilities of travel are to be found everywhere, both by land and water. Churches of every denomination are convenient in every State, and schools are being established for the poorest as well as the richest in the land, by provision of law. Their products are of that character that will command the cash at any time; and the nuts and berries that can be gathered, the product of the poultry yard, the apiary and other matters which are readily at hand, or are easily raised, can be made at all times available to pay the general expenses of the family. Now let us look at the state of the case in the other direction. The wife of an immigrant from Illinois to Nebraska writes to her old home, to the Chicago Western Rural giving a discription of her residence. She is evidently one of the favored kind, for she enumerates the few horses, cows, pigs and chickens they possess, which with a wagon and breaking plow, constitute all their wealth. The scenery is beautiful—so far, so good. She says the location is lightly timbered, but that it is only fit for fuel. They have no coal, but have to get it from a distant part of the State, where, from the depth, it is difficult to develope the mines. The homestead is one hundred and sixty acres; the house built of sod, has a door and one window at the north, and another window at the south; a sod stable; a well 120 feet deep; all wells are bored for, and are from 12 to 18 inches in diameter, and the buckets are adapted to suit.

She adds that they are going to break ten acres around the house and plant a grove all around the outer portion, and have an orchard on the inside, and commence in the spring to cultivate the dooryard, "for we do not expect to always have our sod house standing. Our motto is 'onward and upward,' and to keep out of debt. I expect to devote the most of my leisure time to horticulture, for a few years at least. I cannot say that a frontier life is such as I like, for we are deprived of a great many luxuries and advantages, but if I am to have these privations, I prefer to have them while young."

Now as we have already repeatedly urged, let the immigrant to this section of the South only go to work with the same spirit and determination which this woman carries, with the luxuries and facilities already at command, and he will not have to wait for years in the hope of enjoying some of those blessings without which life is almost intolerable.

The Supreme Court of the United States has just decided the retrospective feature of the Homestead and personal property exemptions of the different States to be unconstitutional, because they come in conflict with the provision in the Constitution of the United States, which declares; no State has the power to pass any law impairing the obligation of contracts.

THE METROPOLITAN LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY OF NEW YORK.

We are gratified to learn that while the course of the "Anchor" has rather tended to the impairment of confidence in Life Insurance Companies, the "Metropolitan Life" of New York is proving that Life Insurance is no myth—no humbug, but a live institution; the protector of the widow and the orphan, and a guarantee against an impoverished old age, if mankind will but do their duty to themselves and their dependents. In July 1871, one of our townsmen insured his life in the "Metropolitan" for the benefit of his aged parents and his child. At the time he insured, his prospects for longevity were better than that of the average of his age, but death came and called him home, but not until he had made a kindly provision for those he loved, and on Friday last the Metropolitan through their agent promptly paid to the benificients of his care $2500, the full amount the Policy called for, although not two annual premiums had been paid at the time of his death.

Prompt and honorable dealing is ever desirable but can not always be expected, yet, the high character the leading Insurance Journals have given the officers and directors of the "Metropolitan" gave us the right to expect no less. Insurance statistics show the Metropolitan not only merited but won the confidence of the public, and now has a flattering prospect of soon becoming, if not the leading Life Company at least the equal of the very first of the country. Organized in 1868, and with a ratio of expenses considerably less than the average of Life Cos., they issued more policies in 1872 than any other Company in the United States, except six, and those six are, on an average, sixteen years older than the Metropolitan. Their annual statement of January 1st 1873 shows the Company to be in a prosperous condition; that they have $122 in available assets for every $100 of liabilities; a most desirable financial condition, to which add the high character accredited to their officers, and the economy of their management make it one of the most desireable Life Cos. in the country in which to seek insurance.

We will add that our townsman JOHN BLACK Esq. is the Agent for this excellent Company, to whom we refer for further particulars.

BRIGHAM YOUNG AGAIN MOVING.

As we announced in our last issue, BRIGHAM YOUNG, the High Priest of Mormonism and the founder of Salt Lake City, is preparing to go once more into the wilderness. He is growing old but he does not appear to be losing any of his cunning. He knows that he cannot live much longer, and he sees that the opening of the Pacific Railroad has brought him into such close communication with a healthier and stronger civilization than his own; that polygamy is doomed. Therefore he proposes to be a graceful retreat. He has resigned all trusts of a business nature, but remains the head of the Mormon Church. The country he has selected is the southern part of Arizona, not far from the Mexican border. It is in the ancient country of the Aztecs, where the soil is rich, the running water abundant and the climate delicious. It is hinted that he will found a new city and build a new tabernicle.

That the Mormons have done the State some service cannot be denied. They went into the heart of the wilderness and there established works of industry, and by so doing became the advance guard of civilization. Their going to Salt Lake enhanced the value of property in that locality. In fact, before their advent the property there was without value. And the Mormons appeal to the unbiased judgment of mankind and ask whether they have not accomplished more for civilization than they have had credit for? A desert has been made a home for one hundred thousand temperate frugal, hard-working people. Two hundred cities have been founded, with schools, factories, mills, and other industrial interests tending to benefit the whole country. Though the Indians could have swept away the colonists at any time, they have made no trouble because they were treated with even justice. By these fruits of twenty-six years the Mormons ask that they should be judged.

As for polygamy, the Mormon prophet points to the cities of the East, and proclaims that their civilization is a lie; that it fosters drunkeness, promotes lust and tends to murder; that the open poligamyst is better than the secret sensunlist; that the statistics of crime are proof of the failure of the old mongamous Christianity. He uses no declamation, but points to the murders of GOODRICH, FISK, RICHARDSON, and many another; to the looseness of divorce laws, and to the wholesale slaughter of unborn children, as the irrefragible evidence of his position. Who shall answer him, so that well informed men shall be satisfied?

The National Bankrupt law was amended by the last Congress, so that in addition to the uniform exemption of $500, all the property is exempted from its operation which the several States have reserved from execution for debts. The amended act not only allows these States exemptions, but allows them as against all liens, no matter how or where acquired as well as all debts contracted before its passage, the decision of any court to the contrary notwithstanding.

New Jersey is justly jubilant is her emancipation from the domination of the railroad interest. Illinois is in a state of incipient revolution under the grinding exaction of the carriers. It costs so much to carry produce by rail to market that production does not pay. Thus it is that monopoly kills the goose that lays the golden egg. The fact is that the golden rule is better to live by than golden eggs.

It is now said that Dr. LIVINGSTONE will be at home within a year. He will then, in all probability, make a lecturing tour in America.

It is now distinctly charged that the captain of the Atlantic had been discharged from another line of steamers for drunkenness. If this is so, and his habits were known to the owners of the White Star Line, of what punishment should they be thought worthy?

Wild Cat Distilleries.

REVENUE OFFICERS IN TENNESEE AND ALABAMA MOVE SIMULTANEOUSLY UPON THEIR WORKS.

Pursuant to instructions from Col. K. R. Cobb, Supervisor of this District, the Internal Revenue officers in the Fourth District of Tennesee and Third District of Alabama, organized themselves into raiding parties on the 20th, and 24th, of last month, and proceeded to the regions in those districts which have for so long been infested with illicit distilleries, and succeeded in finding a great deal of fraud upon the revenue, which was promptly suppressed. Assessor W. C. Bryant of the Fourth District of Tennessee with his trusty assistants William Nicks and J. H. Morris, United States Gaugers Barnes, Hammond, Joe Bryant A. G. Nicks, and quite a number of other Revenue officers and Deputy United States Marshall, started from Mulbury Village, Lincoln County, on the 24th of March, and were ten days in the saddle, riding over three hundred miles over a territory twenty-five miles long and fifteen wide. They captured twenty prisoners, who were bound over to appear at the April term of the United States Court at Nashville. Some are to appear as witnesses only, while the greater portion of Assessor Bryant's party destroyed in all 25 illicit distilleries, 851 tubs and 5 vats containing 53,400 gallons of beer, 500 gallons singlings, 200 bushels meal and malt, and 600 gallons of whiskey, and shipped 60 head of hogs and 7 barrels of whiskey to United States Marshal Spence, at Murfreesboro. The officers of the Fourth District count this the severest stroke that the illicit distillers of that district have yet received. Many of the parties arrested were old offenders, for whom warrants had been out a long time, but owing to the desperate character of some of the men, their arrest has been difficult.

Just previous to the starting out of the above mentioned party, Collector Ephraim Latham, Third District of Alabama, started a party of revenue officers from Huntsville, Ala. and the following is the result of their work; Destroyed 8 copper stills, 11 worms, 1 boiler," 100 tubs, 110 singlings, 10,625 gallons beer, 20 tubs of mash, and made 10 arrests.—Nashville Banner.

KATHAIRON

Only 50 Cents per Bottle.

It promotes the GROWTH, PRESERVES the COLOR, and increases the Vigor and BEAUTY of the HAIR.

OVER THIRTY YEARS AGO LYON'S KATHAIRON FOR THE HAIR was first placed in the market by Professor E. Thomas Lyon, a graduate of Princeton College. The name is derived from the Greek, "KATHRO," signifying to cleanse, purify, rejuvenate, or restore. The favor it has received, and the popularity it has obtained, is unprecedented and incredible. It increases the GROWTH and BEAUTY of the HAIR. It is a delightful dressing. It eradicates Dandruff. It prevents the Hair from turning gray. It keeps the head cool, and gives the hair a rich, soft, glossy appearance. It is the SAME in QUANTITY and QUALITY as it was over a QUARTER of a CENTURY AGO, and is sold by all Druggists and Country Stores at only Fifty Cents per Bottle.

Woman's Glory is Her Hair.

UNITED STATES INTERNAL REVENUE.

Under "An Act for the Reduction of Officers and Expenses of the Internal Revenue," approved December 24th, 1872, it is required that every person or firm liable to special tax must, on or before the 30th day of April of each year, file with the Collector a sworn return on form No. 11, (Copies of which have been sent to every dealer in the District), and pay to such Officer the amount of the tax, when he will be furnished with a "Special Tax Stamp," which must be at all times conspicuously displayed in his or their place of business."

Many Dealers do not seem to be aware of the requirements of the Act referred to, and of the regulations of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, relating thereto; and, instead of complying with said requirements, simply sign their name to the blanks, (Form No. 11), furnished them, and return them to this office. [illegible] is correctly supplied to enabling [illegible] note of instruction on blank form 11, and to strictly observe the requirements of the law.

Tax payers filing their "Returns for Special Taxes" (form 11), with the Collector or Deputy Collector, must pay the taxes and procure the "Special Tax Stamps" for the following year beginning May 1st, proximo.

☞Court in Perquimans county next week.

☞"Evenings at Home" will appear in our next issue.

☞Cotton planting has commenced in this section.

☞Hon. C. L. COBB is in Washington City on business. He will be absent several days.

☞"He who invests one dollar in business should invest one dollar in advertising that business."—A. T. Stewart.

☞Rev. HAGERDON WELLS, Congregationalist, from Rhode Island, preached in the M. E. Church at this place on Sabbath evening last.

☞The theorist as well as the practical man has his place. Alone, neither can accomplish much, but by united effort they may effect a great deal.

☞The public dinner to be given by Eastern Star Lodge No. 18 I. O. of Good Templars at Ramouth Gilead Church on the 3rd of May has been deferred to the third Saturday of May.

☞If any of our readers failed to see the notice of Dr. WM. BARROW, Collector of Internal Revenue in our last issue, we call their attention to the same in this.

☞There will be a public debate by the young Mens Debating Club in Dawson's Gallery on Tuesday night next. Ladies and gentlemen are cordially invited to attend.

☞We call special attention to the able Opinion of His Honor Judge BROOKS on an important case in Bankruptcy, published on our first page this week.

☞At the late term of Court in Gates county CHARLES W. ATKINS, of Murfresboro, was tried for killing GEO. W. THOMPSON in that town on the night of Febuary 14th. A plea of self defense was made and he was acquitted.

☞A young correspondent thinks it strange that more homage should be paid to wealth than wisdom. And yet it is the "way of the world." An old Russian poet once said the reason for it is that "one can borrow wealth, but not wisdom."

☞The U. S. Commissioner of Claims writes us in a letter dated April 16th, saying:

Special Commissioner K. R. PENDLETON, of Woodville, Perquimons County, N. C., has been relieved of his authority to take testimony in behalf of claimants before the Southern Claims Commission.

☞Our patrons in Camden, and Currituck very justly complain that they do not receive our paper until it is a week old. The fault is not ours. They have but one mail a week from this place and it leaves here on Wednesday morning. We do not go to press until Wednesday evening. An effort will be made to change the time of departure from this place to Thursday.

☞Col. THOS. B. LONG, of Salisbury, N. C., spent several days in our town this week. He is Special Agent of the Post Office Department, and was here attending the Federal Court in reference to the Post Office robbery at Plymouth, some time ago. The Colonel is a genial, wholesouled gentleman and is one of the leading and most influential Republicans of Western Carolina. We were much pleased with his visit and hope the pleasant acquaintance made may long continue.

☞The Directors of the "Atlantic Coast Railway Company" have had their Engineers through Eastern Carolina preparatory to making a survey. It is proposed to connect Norfolk with Charleston. The route has not yet been decided upon. Engineer, Col. J. L. MAPES, spent several days last week in this city. He was very favorably impressed and appeared greatly surprized to find a country so full of resources and so susceptible of almost boundless development.

☞Col ROBERT M. DOUGLAS, the newly appointed United States Marshall for this State, arrived here on Friday evenings boat and was sworn into office by His Honor Judge BROOKS on Saturday. He informs us that he will place the Eastern District in charge of J. B. HILL Esq., late chief Deputy of Col. CARROW. Col. DOUGLAS is yet a young man, and is a son of the late STEPHEN A. DOUGLAS. He was the private Secretary of President GRANT during his first term. He is destined, if life is spared, to make his mark in the history of the State and Nation.

☞The Quarterly Conference of the M. E. Church was held at the Newland Church on the 19th and 20th insts. There was a large attendance,

☞A few bolters and irrepressibles held a "rally" in the Court House on Monday night, the object being to bring out an opposition ticket for Municipal officers. Our late Republican friend GRANDY was put forward as a candidate for Mayor. Men are to be pited when attacked with that incurable disease, "office on the brain." It killed poor old GREELEY.

☞The new U. S. District Attorney, R. C. BADGER, Esq., attended Court here this week and made a decidedly favorable impression. He is an able lawyer and an earnest Republican. A member of the Legislature, he was the Republican leader of the House and exerted a controling influence in frustrating many of the partisan schemes of the Democratic majority.

☞We call attention to the proceedings of the City Republican nominating convention held on Friday evening last, and to the ticket nominated. The nomination of JAMES H. SHAW Esq., for Mayor was unanimous. There was some discussion on the Commissioners, but the ticket as it stands at our mast head this week was agreed to by a large and very decided majority. Of course we support it and believe it to be the duty of every good Republican to do the same.

☞His Excelleney Gov. CALDWELL, has appointed the following gentlemen Honary Commissioners from North Carolina to the International Exposition at Vienna; W. H. H. Tucker, of Wake; W. P. Bynum, of Charlotte; Gen. Rufus Barringer, of Charlotte; Silas Martin, of Wilmington; K. P. Battle; of Wake; Palemon John, of Elizabeth City; D. M. Furches, of Statesville; O. H. Dockery, of Richmond; D. A. Barnes, of Northampton; C. D. Smith of Macon; B. S. Gaither, of Burke.

☞The United States District Court was in session here this week, his Honor Judge BROOKS presiding. Quite a number of distinguished lawyers are in attendance, among whom we notice R. C. BADGER Esq., Hon. W. N. H. SMITH, of Raleigh, John A. MOORE Esq., of Plymouth, D. C. WINSTON, of Windsor, and others. The case of the Government against G. G. GRIFFIN charged with the Post Office robbery at Plymouth on the 15th of January was brought before the Grand Jury, a bill was found against him and he was bound over to appear at the next Court. Several Bankrupt cases were disposed of. The Court adjourns today.

☞There was quite a disastrous fire at Shiloh, in Camden county, on the night of the 14th, inst., destroying a number of buildings and much valuable property. The store and warehouse of J. B. FLORA, the stables of SAMUEL MORRISETT and the store house and dwelling of DAVIS & BROTHER were all burned. Mr. FLORA lost his entire stock of goods and 10 bales of Cotton; Mr. MORRISETT lost two horses. No insurance except $600, on the property of DAVIS & BROTHERS. Loss over $5000. Two colored men, WILLIS and ISAAC WRIGHT, have been arrested on suspicion of setting fire to the buildings, which was discovered in three seperate places. They have been lodged in the Camden County jail.

Half Alive.

It is a sad thing to pass through life only half alive. Yet there are thousands whoso habitual condition is one of languor and debility. They complain of no specific diseases; they suffer no positive pain; but they have no relish for anything which affords mental or sensuous pleasure to their more robus and energetic fellow-beings.

In nine cases out of ten this state of lassitude and torpor arises from a morbid stomach. Indigestion destroys the energy of both mind and body. When the waste of nature is not supplied by a due and regular assimilation of the food, every organ is starved every function interrupted.

Now, what does common sense suggest under these circumstances of depression? The system needs rousing and strengthening; not merely for an hour or two, to sink afterwards into a more pitable condition than ever (as it assuredly would do if an ordinary alcoholic stimulant was resorted to), but radically and permanently.

How is this desirable object to be accomplished? The answer to this question, founded on the unvarying experience of a quarter of a century, is easily given. Infuse new vigor into the digestive organs by a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Do not waste time in administering temporary remedies, but wake the system up by recuperating the fountain heid of physical strength and energy, the grea at organ upon which all the other organs depend for their nurture and support.

By this time that a dozen doses of the great vegetable tonic and invigorant have been taken, the feeble frame of the dyspeptic will begin to feel its benign influence. Appetite will be cacated, and with appetite the capacity to digest what it craves. Persevere until the cure is complets—until healthful blood, fit to be the material of flesh and muscle, bone and nerve and brain, flows through the channels of circulation, instead of the watery pabulum with which they have heretofore been imperfectly nourished.

How often Should Cows be Milked?

Regularity in the milking of cows is of as much importance as regularity in feeding them. In a state of nature, the cow is relieved of its milk a great many times a day. A calf allowed to remain with its mother will help itself seven or eight times a day, under such circumstances the udder of the cow will remain small, and if allowed to retain the milk secreted during twelve hours, feverish symptoms are likely to be produced. The practice of milking cows more than twice in the course of twenty-four hours, causes the capacity of the udder to be greatly increased, and probably helps in maintaining the lacteal secretion long after pregnancy has taken place. When, however, by an artificial system the cow has been enabled to retain her milk without inconvenience for twelve hours or so, she ought to be milked regularly every day at the same hour. When the time for milking arrives, the udder usually becomes distended to its uttermost capacity; and if it be not speedily removed, the animal suffers considerable pain. Cases of fever, the result of allowing animals to remain too long unmilked, are, indeed, by no means of unfrequent occurance. It is especially necessary to attend to this point for some day after the animal has brought forth her young, for during that period every irritation of the lacteal organs is likely to bring on that most fatal of maladies—fever. If milking be too long delayed, nature will try to help the poor animal. The absorption of milk into the blood will to some extent take place, and that which remains in the udder will become deteriorated. When neglect to milk a cow at the regular time is repeated several times the secretion of the fluid is prematurely checked, and there are many cases where by such neglect an animal has become dry in less than a month.—Irish Farmer's Gazette.

Improving Land—An Instance.

A Cumberland (Virginia) correspondent mentiones a notable case of improvement of badly worn, apparently worthless soil. In a twenty acre field were four acres "perfectly bare, except stunted bunches of hengrass." On this he spread refuse tobacco stalks, and in the autumn scattered five bushels of lime per acre, and plowed under, and sowed winter oats, one bushel per acre, harrowing to a fine filth. In spring, after applying lime in quantity as before, the oats were plowed under, and one month later peas were sown, five pecks to the acre, and again, when the ground was well covered with vines, an application of two bushels of lime and one of salt was made, and the pea-vines turned under. On the 20th of September wheat was sown, five pecks per acre, with one gallon of clover-seed. The result was 60 bushels of wheat, or 15 bushels per acre. The pecuniary result was as follows:

Dry Food for the Horses.

The Spirit of the Times says: "We never have believed and never shall believe, that chopped hay and corn meal, saturated with water, is proper for a working horse as a diet. We firmly believe that the food of a working horse, who cannot be pastured, should be good—sound oats and sweet hay for at least five days a week. Look at the South, where the common run of working horses are fed on corn. What is found there? Why, the big head, a terrible and almost incurable complaint. We also think that wet corn meal is the very worst way of feeding corn to a horse that ever was practised. And the chopped, wet hay is not half so good as fine, bright timothy from the mow. We like to hear the horse grinding up his good timothy hay like a grist mill, after he has finished his oats. A nice mash once in a while is good, and a very different thing from almost constant soft diet."

Barley Culture.

In Southern Wisconsin we make it a general rule to sow barley upon corn-stubble; plowed or not as it suits the fancy of the grower, both plans giving equally good return. Many of our best farmers drill it on corn-stubble, often without putting away the corn-stalks, though it is much more pleasant in harvest-time if they are cut and burned. My plan is to spring-plow the corn-land, and sow broadcast, at the rate two and a quarter bushels to the acre, and I very rarely get below an average of thirt-five bushels. As it is of prime importance to secure the berry in the brightest possible condition we sow very early, and stack before the general harvest comes on. On good soil barley will grow long enough to be bound as well as any grain, and long experience teaches us it is a more safe and economical way than putting up loose.—Western Farmer.

To Cure Dogs of Killing Sheep.

If you have a good dog that kills or runs sheep, and don't want to shoot him, build a pen sixteen feet square, and run a pole across the top, and then pick the largest and boldest buck o' the flock, put him in the pen, get your dog with a collar around his neck, and rope to draw up over the middle of the pole, so that the dog will have his fore feet swing ng off the ground a few inches. Get out of the pen, and let the buck give him several good butts, and then turn him loose. This is a sure cure. I tried it on my father's dogs when I was a boy; never knew them to ever cross a field where the sheep were grazing. Try it.

CRACKED WHEAT.—Persons living away from those points where this luxury can be readily bought may prepare an equally good article simply by passing good wheat through a common coffee mill. To cook it, add to one part wheat five parts water; place the vessel containing it in a kettle of boiling water for four or five hours; stir occasionally, and add a little salt. The amount of water and time of cooking varies with the variety of the wheat and the taste of the eater. It is very nice cold, eaten with milk, sirup, butter or other dressing.

Shingle roofs, and indeed all wood work, may be rendered less liable to take fire from falling cinders, &c., by coating it with a wash composed of lime salt, and fine sand or wood ashes. This compound also preserves the wood, and should be applied in the same way as ordinary whitewash.

The horse disease has finally reached the Indian ponies of British America.

He may at all times be found either in his store prepared to accommodate customers with New Goods, or in his shop adjoining, willing and happy to repair any article in his line of business.

A NEW ERA IN JOURNALISM.

THE GREAT ACHIEVEMENT OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY.

THE DAILY GRAPHIC
All the News and Full of Pictures.

THE DAILY GRAPHIC is the title of a newspaper, published in New York, which is achieving the most remarkable journalistic success ever chronicled. It is an eight-page evening paper (three editions daily), elegantly printed, and conducted by the ablest editorial talent attainable.

As a newspaper THE DAILY GRAPHIC stands in the first rank, and contains regularly

THE VERY LATEST AND FULLEST NEWS FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

Its great feature consists in the fact that it is not only a newspaper, but an illustrated newspaper as well. Four of its pages are filled with choice reading matter—telegrams, editorials, general and local news, items, gossip, and correspondence on the freshest and most interesting topics. The remaining four pages consist of executed in the most faultless and artistics style, and portraying accurately and fully all leading events within twenty-four hours after their occurrence. Those who have made journalism a study, and fully appreciate the great enterprise manifested in the collection and publication of news by the aid of the telegraph, steam presses, and the development of journalistic talent, have been fond of advancing the theory that the next advance in that field would result in a newspaper furnishing in its regular issues pictures of all current prominent events. That theory is a theory no longer; the newspaper of the future is the newspaper of to-day, and that paper is THE DAILY GRAPHIC. The processes which render this marvellous acheivement an existing fact are the result of the most careful study and an endless variety of experiments, gradually perfected during the past twelve years. They depend upon improvements in lithographic and the application of the photographic camera. By their aid a picture is engraved and made ready to print in from twenty minutes to two hours. Costly and elaborate plates, works of art, scenes of interest, are reproduced and pictured forth with equal facility and the most scrupulous fidelity. Illustrations of leading events are engraved and prepared for the press even before the accompanying written narrative or description leaves the hands of the compositor.

For the proper practical working of so great an enterprise, THE GRAPHIC COMPANY was formed, with

CAPITAL OF $500,000 IN GOLD, months and months before the first issue of THE DAILY GRAPHIC, the most extensive preperations were made, and to-day THE GRAPHIC COMPANY has

The Largest and most Complete Newspaper Establishment in the United States.

In the great work of illustrating the events of the day an extensive corps of the best known and most accomplished artists are constantly engaged.

THE DAILY GRAPHIC aims to be in its strictest sense a newspaper. Striving always to be just and truthful, it discusses all questions independently and impartially. It is not the organ of any party, sect, or creed. It is always high-toned, and contains nothing to offend any taste. Its contents give it an immense advantage over the "old fashioned" papers. The annual subscriber gets a volume of twenty-for hundred pages, constituting a valuable record of events and a graphic panorama of our time and progress. It possesses not merely a local interest, but is a paper for every reader of the language. It is, emphatically,
